The ecosystem services and natural capital that have been ignored for the long time are the support system for our human beings and the whole life system on this planet, which refers to the qualification and efficacy of the whole ecosystem formed and maintained for us. Ecosystem services and natural capital are vital for our development. In this paper, the connotation and extension of ecosystem services and the essential signification are discussed, the methods of the calculation of ecological services and natural capital are analyzed, and the potential areas that need deeper research are pointed out.

【Key Words】 : ecosystem services natural capital economical assessment sustainable development
